County Commission System of Salary-Fixing Hit

GRAND JURY URGES SETTING OF WAGES BY SPECIAL BOARD

Present Practice Will Bring "Patronage" and "Exploitation," Presentments Recommend.

SALARIES TOO HIGH IN JURY'S OPINION

New Board Would Consist of Five Immediate Past Foremen of Fulton Grand Juries.

Removal of salary-fixing power from the county commission to a board consisting of the five immediate past foremen of the grand juries who may be available is recommended in special presentments returned Friday by the Fulton grand jury. The presentments express the opinion that the act conferring the power upon the county commission to fix salaries is wrong in principle and in the end will "create a vicious circle of iniquitous patronage on the one side and exploitation on the other."

"It is obvious to all that the services of the county can be fully and adequately provided by a much smaller personnel, and that the salaries paid are out of all proportion to the services rendered," the presentments state. "The time to remedy the situation is the immediate present," the grand jury pointed out. The change recommended would "bring to the public service a group free from the entanglements of political obligation who, while being fully advised of the public necessities involved, will be guided only by what is justly due to those employed and by what the county ought to justly pay," according to the grand jury.

The grand jury declared that it recognized the peculiar situation surrounding any board, elected to office by the voters and largely through the influence of men whose salaries they are to fix. The grand jury was "unanimous in recommending most highly those members of the board of commissioners who have been laboring to bring the salary sheet of Fulton county within reasonable limits."

The presentments to be furnished to the county representatives in the legislature, under action by the grand jury, follow:

"To the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia:

"The grand jury serving for the July-August term of 1929 respectfully submits the following special presentments:

"The power conferred upon the county commissioners by virtue of which they are authorized to fix the salaries of county officials, is the highest sort of trust, in the discharge of which only the public interest ought to be considered."

"This grand jury is unanimous in recommending most highly those members of the board of commissioners who have been laboring to bring the salary sheet of Fulton county within reasonable limits."

ELECTRIC COOKING SCHOOL WILL OPEN TUESDAY MORNING

Plans for Elaborate Display of Labor-Saving Devices Made for Constitution Four-Day Event.

Plans for the most elaborate exposition of scientific and labor-saving methods in food preparation and serving for the home ever conducted in Atlanta are being formulated in connection with The Constitution's free electric cooking school, which opens Tuesday morning at the Loew's Grand theater. Continuing for four days, the school will offer to thousands of Atlanta housewives the opportunity of first-hand demonstration in the advantages of modern kitchen appliances and practices.

Miss Bernice Lowen, nationally known home economist of the Chicago Electric Cooking bureau, has been secured to direct The Constitution's free electric cooking school. She will conduct the lectures and demonstrations during the four daily classes. Miss Lowen, who is an outstanding authority in economies of the home, has met with brilliant success in cooking schools directed by her throughout the country. Conversion of the theater stage into a veritable kitchen of the most approved appointments will be a feature of the daily cooking school performances. With every electrical appliance necessary for the preparation of food at her hand, Miss Lowen will illustrate to the women of Atlanta the fundamentals of home cooking as well as the latest and most scientific discoveries in the art of preparing food and serving in the home.

Open to Public.
The cooking school sessions, open free of charge to the public, will be carried promptly at 10 o'clock each morning of July 21, 22, 23, and 24. The sessions will be two hours in length, being terminated each day promptly at the noon hour.

Arrangements have been made to hold the electric cooking school at Loew's Grand theater, at Peachtree street and Peachtree avenue, as a special convenience to the female population of Atlanta. Located in the downtown shopping district, the theater, with its morning classes, will provide the additional convenience of allowing those who attend The Constitution's electric cooking school to plan their afternoon shopping without interference.

Due to its unusually large seating capacity, the Grand theater has been selected for the school. In addition to these comforts the theater, with its excellent acoustics, will set off to best advantage the interesting and helpful demonstrations.

Failure to Confirm Appointee Develops That Majority Opposes Removal of Sam Slate.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Failure of the state senate Friday to confirm the appointment of Thomas Wisdom as state auditor to succeed Sam J. Slate developed the fact that an overwhelming majority of the state senators are opposed to the removal of Auditor Slate and that the nomination for his successor will in all probability not be confirmed.

Governor Hardman sent the appointment of Mr. Wisdom to the senate in a sealed communication and after a short executive session this appointment, together with the appointment of several other persons for minor positions, was referred to the senate committee on privileges and elections. It appears to be certain that the committee, at its meeting Tuesday, will reject the appointment of Mr. Wisdom and that the senate will uphold this action by an overwhelming vote.

It also is virtually certain that the senate, by an overwhelming vote, will refuse to confirm Judge Harry D. Reed, of Waycross, as a member of the state highway board to succeed Stanley S. Bennett, of Quitman, at the expiration of his term, January 1, 1930.

No Reflection on Appointees.
Rejection of these two appointments is by no means a reflection on the appointees but is due to the peculiar political situation that exists. Both Mr. Wisdom and Judge Reed are able and estimable men and the senators have made it plain that their opposition is not based on personal grounds but is based on the fact that an overwhelming majority of the senators do not want to see the present officers re-elected.

It is the opinion of the senators, openly expressed, that Mr. Slate is as able and capable in his position as any auditor in the country. He is widely known for the accuracy and completeness of his audits and the reliability of the information he supplies.

Other features of the short session were the adoption of a resolution.

Four Billion Dollars Will Be Needed To Care for Government in Next Four Years.

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—An increase in governmental expenditures of approximately $300,000,000 during the next four years was forecast by the White House today after a study of appropriations made by congress and other mandatory obligations.

The increase, if it materializes, will send the total government expenditures out of ordinary receipts above $4,000,000,000 for the first time since the years of heavy war expenses. For the fiscal year closing last June 30 the total government expenditures aggregated $2,848,465,190, while the increase for this year was estimated at $91,890,000.

The report of the investigation into the probable increases in federal expenses transmitted to the White House showed that additional expenditures for the military service, public works, postal deficit, farm relief and other government costs would in four years total $300,000,000. Of this amount farm relief was expected to account for at least $150,000,000 while the increases in the three divisions of government were expected to total $139,800,000, with other government departments also showing increases.

The figures showed that the total expenditures for the army, navy, public works and postal deficit this year were expected to approximate $1,100,000,000, an increase of $28,400,000, while in 1932 the estimate placed those expenditures at $1,145,000,000, another increase of $16,000,000, and in 1933 at $1,148,500,000, an increase of $3,500,000, bringing the total estimated increase to $139,000,000.

LEGISLATORS ORGANIZE TO STOP INVASION OF THEIR "RIGHTS"

Minneapolis, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—District Attorney Alvin M. Edwards, of Nassau county, announced tonight he had obtained possession of a circular, which he said showed that bootleggers of the county were organizing the "Nassau Civil Liberties League" to protect their "rights."

Mr. Edwards said the circular, which had been distributed among those engaged in illicit liquor trade, contained the following statement:

"We are organizing a league of proprietors, bootleggers and distillery operators to protect ourselves against further invasion of our rights."

The circular, Mr. Edwards said, denounced as "unfair" County Judge Lewis J. Smith, Assistant District Attorney Seward Spoor and himself. He said it asked contributions for the purpose of carrying liquor cases to higher courts.

Recently the district attorney's office obtained a large number of convictions on charges of maintaining public nuisances.

CHRISTOPHER, TOUR LEADER, ARRIVES IN ARMY 'FALCON'

Georgia Squadron Commander Accompanied by Captain A. B. McDaniel, of Air Corps.

BY N. S. NOBLE.
City Editor, The Constitution

First of the fliers to arrive in Atlanta for the "All-Georgia Air Tour" next week, Major Luke Christopher, squadron commander of the flight, and Capt. A. B. McDaniel, U. S. A., landed at Candler field Friday afternoon from Bolling field, Washington, flying an army attack plane.

As the big army ship, which will be the tour squadron flagship, circled Atlanta's municipal airport and glided down to the runway, the first event on the air tour program was at hand. Leading the van of planes and aviators which will come to this city for the all-state flight starting next Tuesday and ending Friday, the Curtiss "Falcon" was first on hand as a flagship should be.

A group of the tour committee was at the airport to greet the fliers who had stopped at Langley field, Virginia, en route. Major Christopher and Captain McDaniel were taken to the Ansley hotel, air tour headquarters, where the management had made reservations for them.

Arrangements for a public inspection of all the planes in next week's tour were completed by the general committee Friday. Governor Hardman has been invited to be present at Candler field at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, when "Miss Georgia" will be christened.

Tour Committee Meets.
The general committee of the air tour met at 12:30 o'clock Friday at the Chamber of Commerce for the last time prior to the start of the all-state flight Tuesday morning.

Public inspection of the airplanes Monday afternoon will give Atlantans an opportunity to see every ship which will circle the state in the squadron. All planes will taxi up to the line and will present a modern flotilla of lighted aircraft.

The "All-Georgia Air Tour" banquet at 7 o'clock Monday night on the Ansley roof will be the final send-off for the tour. The banquet will be held at the Ansley hotel, air tour headquarters, where the management had made reservations for them.

Home Reveals Still, Liquor; Man Is Jailed

D. A. Malof Denies Knowledge of Illicit Outfit in Formwalt House.

A raid made by city and county officers Friday afternoon on a house at the corner of Formwalt and Rawson streets resulted in the seizure of a 75-gallon copper still and a quantity of liquor and the arrest of a man giving his name as D. A. Malof.

The officers entered the house and found Malof in a downstairs kitchen. He was held while further search revealed the still in operation on the second floor of the structure. Malof denied all knowledge of the still, claiming that he was staying at the house while a "friend went on errand."

He was held at Fulton tower in default of $2,000 bond on charges of manufacturing and possessing liquor.

In addition to the still, which was operated by gas burners, officers found about 10 gallons of whisky, 400 gallons of mash and hundreds of bottles of and spurious labels, used in the making and bottling of "Scotch," "Rye," and "Bourbon" whiskies, and "fancy liquors."

The raiding squad was composed of Detectives Sheriff F. G. Davies, City Schilling and J. E. White and City Detectives R. H. DuFree, William Holland, C. C. Harper, Eugene Head and Joe Allen.

A mysterious "tip" late Thursday night led officers Schilling Head and Allen to a 216-quart cache of liquor in the basement of an exclusive apartment house on Ponce de Leon avenue, the officers revealed Friday.

The telephone brought the "tip" with explicit directions for reaching the "plant" of rum. Following these directions the three officers found 216 bottles of gin and assorted whiskies, all apparently genuine.

HEALTH BODY PROBES REFRIGERATION GASES

Starts Inquiry To Find Medium Safe for Use in Residences.

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—Use of chemical warning agents where dangerous gases are utilized in refrigeration has been recommended by the public health service.

Co-operating with the bureau of mines, the public health service has been investigating refrigeration methods employing toxic and non-toxic gases. Dr. R. H. Sayers, attached to both agencies, said today the inquiry began to find a refrigerating medium safe for use in mines is to be extended to include household refrigerating plants. Numerous requests for investigations and information have come to the bureau of mines since the recent deaths in Chicago, said to have been the result of exposure to refrigerating gases. Officials said today, however, that their investigation had been under way for some time previously.

The first report on the inquiry said today that at least two and possibly four gases used in domestic and industrial refrigerating plants are toxic and do not possess sufficient warning properties to prevent serious involuntary exposure. The recommendation for use of chemical warning agents said studies had been made of the toxic quality of vapors from methyl bromide, methyl chloride, ethyl bromide and ethyl chloride by experiments with guinea pigs.

"With the exception of ethyl chloride," the report declared, "none of the vapors studied possess what would be considered a marked warning property under all conditions of exposure. Even with ethyl chloride, as well as with other compounds, a person might tolerate a high concentration until rendered helpless." The survey said under ordinary conditions there was apparently little danger from the gases, but that hazards might be caused by leaks and other results of faulty operation.

"The addition of a suitable warning agent to refrigerating media," the report said, "whose vapors are both toxic and explosive, or both, yet which do not possess adequate warning properties, would appear to markedly lessen the hazards of their use."

NATION-WIDE HOOK-UP PLANNED BY ARMOUR

Plans for a nation-wide radio hook-up on Friday, August 2, to advertise the company's products were revealed Friday at a meeting of more than 100 Georgia representatives of Armour & Company.

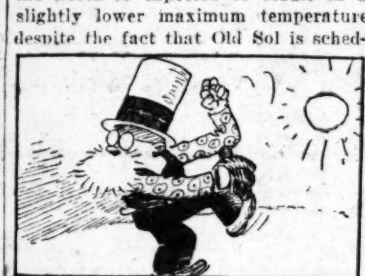

The company now maintains a system of continuous communication with housewives through the medium of more than 750 daily newspapers, and with the proposed radio program will become the first great packing company to "go on the air" to reach its millions of customers. A feature of the radio program will be a message from the president, F. Edison White, to his thousands of employees throughout the nation.

The meeting of Georgia representatives was arranged by R. E. Stringfellow, district manager for Georgia, Alabama and Florida. James F. Donovan, member of the executive board, of Chicago, explained plans for the radio broadcasting, which probably will become a periodic feature following the initial program. The design of the radio hook-up, Mr. Donovan explained, is not only to reach millions of customers and potential customers but also to establish closer contact among the company's personnel. The radio work is only one of several steps in the direction of a more collective organization, the executive explained.

Clear, Cooler Weather Seen For City Today

Fair and cooler is the weather outlook for Atlanta today, according to the official forecast of C. F. von Herrmann which presents a slight variation of the more usual formula. A high pressure area moving in from the north is expected to result in a slightly lower maximum temperature despite the fact that Old Sol is scheduled to be on duty for most of his allotted hours.

The minimum Friday was an even 68, two degrees below Thursday's bottom figure, while the high point for the day was 87, a jump of one degree over the maximum of the day before. The top reading today will be approximately 82 or 83 degrees, Mr. von Herrmann figures.

NO TRACES FOUND OF HOODED BANDITS

Men Steal Armored Car and $43,000 in New Orleans.

New Orleans, July 19.—(AP)—Masked bandits stole an armored money truck containing $42,000 in cash and negotiable checks off the streets of New Orleans early today and disappeared.

After an all-day search, the police had been unable to find any trace of either the robbers or the motor car. The only clue they had was a description furnished by the bank guards, who were thrown off of the truck by the bandits and chased into a restaurant while the thieves escaped in the car, firing their pistols as they sped away.

Apparently the robbery had been planned carefully. The truck was making its daily rounds at the branches of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., when it was forced to the curb by a grey sedan, out of which jumped three bandits, wearing black hoods over their heads and black raincoats. As they sprang to the running board of the truck, they let off their pistols, the guards were thrown out as a bandit grabbed the wheel of the truck.

One bandit chased the guards into the restaurant, another turned the sedan, which was stolen, crossways in the street, another blocked a cross street with a second machine and all of them boarded the armored truck and escaped.

Spectators said it all happened in the flash of an eye, and before onlookers could recover their senses the bandits had disappeared. Police believe they took the car to a pre-arranged hiding place and divided the loot. Although more than a dozen shots were fired no one was injured.

WISDOM REJECTION BY SENATE GROUP

lution expressing confidence in Senator Charles D. Redwine, of the 20th district, and in Representative J. W. Culpener, of Fayette county, and passage of 10 local and two general bills.

The resolution endorsing Senator Redwine and Representative Culpener was prompted by an article which appeared in a local newspaper of Fayette county and which was widely distributed in both branches of the legislature. Senator George Lanford, who spoke for the confidence resolution, declared the story to be untrue and highly derogatory to the characters of the two legislators involved.

Archives Building. A bill by Senator Tyson, of the second district, giving the department of archives and history the right to locate, secure and maintain places of historical interest in Georgia was passed on its final reading. The author of the bill explained that it was directed mainly at the old missions on the eastern Georgia coast and would authorize the department to set these up as regular museum spots.

The bill carried no appropriation in its Senate form, merely allowing the department to accept gifts from firms or individuals and giving it the right to hold property.

A general bill introduced by Senator J. A. Smith, of the twenty-fifth district, was defeated after a short debate on the floor. It would have provided that state pension checks be mailed to pensioners directly from the office of the pension commissioner in the capital.

Disputation arose on grounds that under the present law with county ordinaries distributing the pension checks, impoverished veterans are able at times to give notes on their pensions. The delay and distance involved if the checks were distributed from Atlanta was said to be inconvenient for many of the pensioners in sparsely settled sections.

Retirement of Teachers. A resolution to look into existing laws in other states regarding retirement of aged or incompetent common school teachers was passed by the house. The measure was introduced by Senator Ham, of the sixth, and Lanford spoke in opposition to the bill.

The attorney-general's office was directed to furnish the senate with certain definite information in regard to tax laws by a privileged resolution offered by Senator Broadus Zeller.

Four questions are put in the measure in regard to the number and nature of cases now in court, the provisions of the tax laws attacked, the status of the cases in the courts, and the decisions and appeals to higher courts made in the cases. No time limit was set for the resolution for return of the information.

Road Mileage Needed. Subsequent to the highway mileage bill passed Thursday by the senate, Senator Pitner introduced a privileged resolution to ask the highway board what mileage would be needed in the state highway system in order to connect in a direct way the county seats of the state.

Bills introduced for first reading Friday dealt principally with minor code changes. Senator Lanford sponsored a bill to allow county sheriffs a 20 per cent bonus on all license fees collected from violators of the automobile license tag laws.

Senator George Goode, of the thirty-first, introduced an amendment to the code to authorize railroads to elect boards of directors in excess of fifteen members. Senator Pitner and others introduced a bill regulating the practice of dentistry and dental hygiene.

The Saturday session of the senate will again be omitted while the members of the upper house journey to Claytons, Ga., to administer the oath of office to Senator C. E. Cannon, who is absent from the session because of illness.

The following local house bills were passed Friday by the senate:

By the Fulton Delegation—To authorize the city of Atlanta to sell certain parcels of land owned by the city.

AUTO OF HOLLOWAY,
ATLANTA RECORDER,
WRECKED IN CRASH

There was a thanksgiving party at Judge Murphy M. Holloway's home, 1408 Highland avenue, N. E., Friday night.

Mrs. Holloway was piloting the Holloway machine from her extended vacation trip to Oklahoma early Friday morning, when a large truck sped by about 4 miles the other side of West Point, taking all the corners and forcing the Holloway machine off the road.

Despite the fact that the car turned completely over three or four times, not one of the four occupants received a scratch. The truck kept going and no trace of it has been found.

The Holloway car was practically demolished.

In addition to Mrs. Holloway, Malcolm Holloway, 8, a son of Judge and Mrs. Holloway; Mrs. J. S. Hammett, and her son, Marion, 8, were in the car.

"I'd like to get that driver before my court, but I am happy to have the family escape; it's a wonder they all weren't killed," the recorder said.

SUIT FOR $25,000
DAMAGES IS FILED
BY T. L. M'BRAYER

Suit for $25,000 damages was filed Friday by T. L. M'Brayer against National Products, Inc., in an effort to recover for injuries sustained in a collision between the plaintiff's car and a truck owned by the defendant.

The accident occurred on Howell Mill road near Fourteenth street, and resulted in concussion of the brain for the petitioner, according to allegations in suit. The petition was filed by the law firm of Wright and Gilbert.

HUSBAND BURNED
HER CLOTHES, WIFE
CHARGES IN SUIT

When your husband hits you in the face, throws a butcher knife across the bed on which you are resting, and then makes a bonfire out of your clothes, its time to ask for a divorce, according to the petition filed Friday in Fulton superior court by Mrs. Catherine B. Straub.

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy signed a temporary order restraining Fred Augustus Straub, the defendant, from communicating with Mrs. Straub or from coming near her. In her libel for divorce Mrs. Straub alleges that her husband is a man of violent temper and has threatened her life. She asks custody of two minor children. The petition was filed by Attorney J. L. Harrelson.

HOOVER PAYING
COST OF FISHING
LODGE ON RAPIDAN

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—The cost of building President Hoover's fishing lodge on the Rapidan river in Virginia is being borne by the chief executive himself.

This statement was made today by George Akerson, the president's secretary, when his attention was called to reports that the expense was being met by the government.

"The president," Akerson said, "is paying out of his own pocket for every board and nail that goes into the lodge."

TWENTY LIVES
LOST IN FLOODS
OF INDIA RIVERS

Hyderabad, Nizam's Dominions, British India, July 19.—(AP)—Floods following torrential rains throughout Sind have taken 20 lives. Standing crops such as cotton and wheat houses on the low lying lands have been greatly damaged. Cattle losses have been heavy.

'HEX' KILLERS ADMIT MURDER OF WOMAN

Slew To Save Daughter From
Hoodoo, Parents
Declare.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 19.—(AP)—Admitting they killed Mrs. Etta L. Fairchild, 75, because they feared the effect of her "evil eye" on their 17-year-old daughter, Eugene Burgess, 33, and his wife, Pearl, were being held on a charge of murder here today.

They were arrested last night after officers, called to the home on a "tip," discovered a blood-spattered living room and later found the body of the woman in the cistern back of the house.

Court action against the Burgessses has been held up pending questioning of their son, Burnett, by Prosecutor Paul M. Tedrow, to determine whether the youth was in the house when the crime was committed and took part in the slaying.

In his confession Burgess coolly revealed an amazing belief in spells and latter-day witchcraft reminiscent of the recent "hex" murders in the vicinity of York, Pa.

Burgess and his wife blamed Mrs. Fairchild for the ill health of their daughter, Eugene, and also for a spell under which they believed the entire family to be laboring. Yesterday, when Mrs. Fairchild called at the Burgess home they said she boasted of a "mental power" to annihilate whom ever she chose. They said she told them she had killed more than 100 persons a year for the past 25 years.

Mrs. Burgess said the woman had a long list of persons she claimed were victims of her "evil eye," including her husband and prominent Kalamazoo citizens.

Burgess is said to have told officers he came on the woman from behind as she was eating dinner at their home last night and beat her with a lead pipe and a hammer. Following this he and his wife raised the body in a rug, weighted it, and threw it into the cistern, he said.

TRIO OF NEGROES
KILLED BY POSSE
FOLLOWING MURDER

Greenville, Ky., July 19.—(AP)—Trying to escape after the Ohio river, a boat without oars after a fatal shooting, two negroes were shot to death by a posse of railroad men today as a third was believed to have drowned.

One of the three had killed Jack Silvey, 27, Chesapeake and Ohio railroad fireman. None of the negroes was identified. Silvey was shot after he had routed the trio from a mess car where the crew said he had been forced to give them food.

About 40 railroad men, armed with shotguns and pistols gave chase and as the negroes tried to paddle the boat with their hands, fired several volleys, killing two of them. The boat overturned and it was believed the third man drowned.

FLY SPECIALISTS
RECOMMEND BAN
ON FRUIT END

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—Lifting of the quarantine in sections of Florida infected by citrus fruit fly to permit shipments, after certain processing of citrus fruits was recommended to Secretary Hyde today by a committee of seven specialists who have studied the situation.

Experimental work has indicated, the report said, that citrus fruit and possibly also other host fruits and vegetables may be treated or processed so as to make possible movement in commerce without risk of spread of infestation.

The recommendation would apply to the movement of all citrus fruits leaving infested states or districts or successful demonstration of its commercial practicability, and safeguarding the movement of other host fruits and host vegetables would similarly be required upon determination of methods.

FORMER ATLANTA
PASTOR IS CALLED TO PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, July 19.—(Special.) The Rev. Dr. Roy Talmage Brumbaugh, former well known Atlanta Presbyterian clergyman, is to leave for Conestoga, Pa., who has been extended a call to become pastor of Bethany Presbyterian church, the largest Presbyterian church in Philadelphia, and one of the largest in the denomination, announced today that he will accept the call.

The Bethany congregation met last night, and Robert M. Coyle, millionaire chairman of the committee on a new pastor, presented the name of Dr. Brumbaugh. He was unanimously elected as successor to the Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan, now a pastor in Pittsburgh.

GROOM FAINTS TWICE
Wedding Is Success in Spite of Heat.

Uniontown, Pa., July 19.—(United News.)—The wedding was a success, although the bridegroom fainted twice. Intense heat in a church here was blamed for the unusual interruptions in the marriage service joining Adolph Matuschek, a merchant of Farrell, Pa., and Katherine Matuschek, of Uniontown. Matuschek had been revived twice with smelling salts. On each occasion his bride caught him as he dropped to the floor.

Matuschek said he felt better after the ceremony.

Three Members of Last Man's BOTTLE OF BURGUNDY AWAITS FINAL TOAST Club Gather for Reunion

St. Paul, Minn., July 19.—(United News.)—Three veterans of the Civil War, the youngest 87 years old, will gather around a dinner table tomorrow in the forty-fourth annual reunion of the Last Man's Club.

A year ago, when the failing veterans assembled at their simple reunion, many predicted they had met for the last time but tonight found John S. Goff, 87, of St. Paul; Charles Lockwood, 82, of Chamberlain, and Peter Hall, 82, of Atwater, Minn., ready to answer another roll call.

The three are the only survivors of 314 members of Company B, first Minnesota volunteers infantry. Forty-four years ago the company organized the Last Man's Club at Stillwater and set aside a bottle of burgundy wine which is to be opened only by the "last man" for a toast to his departed comrades.

The burgundy will be on the banquet table at noon tomorrow at the fashionable Minnesota Club where the three men will dine together with seven or eight surviving members of the first regiment.

It had been planned to hold the banquet at the home of Goff's daughter, Mrs. William Griff, who was hostess last year, but when the veterans expressed the desire to entertain other boys of the regiment the banquet was transferred to the club.

"We just didn't have room," Mrs. Griff said. "You see, most of the boys are so old that they need at least one chapman and some of them have three or four. Our little home wouldn't hold them all."

"Take father, there," she added, "he needs at least two chapmans himself, he's so weak now."

"Is that so?" responded the inviolable veteran. "I'm jes' as spry as ever, goldam it, and I have a good mind to walk all the way down to that mess hall tomorrow. Peter Hall don't need no nurse girl and neither does Charley and I won't have one."

ATTORNEY SOUGHT
IN SLAYING PLOT,
GIVES UP TO POLICE

St. Louis, July 19.—(AP)—R. Shad Bennett, St. Louis attorney, sought for a week to answer to a charge of conspiracy to commit murder, surrendered here late today. The warrant alleges he negotiated for the slaying of Olin King, bankrupt West Frankfort, Ill., butcher, in order to collect insurance policies he held on King's life as security for a $20,000 loan.

Bennett said he returned from West Palm Beach, Fla., today and went to the municipal courts where he furnished a $5,000 bond. He said he would fight extradition until an indictment is returned.

"All I know about this case," Bennett said, "is what I've read in the newspapers. There is not a word of truth in any charge that I conspired to murder anyone. Bennett also declared he could not have King slain for his insurance as King's affairs are involved in a bankruptcy case."

MORROW RECEIVES FLOOD OF LETTERS FOR MEXICAN JOB

Mexico City, July 19.—(AP)—Published reports in Mexican and United States newspapers that Ambassador Morrow was acquiring vast land and water properties in Mexico have brought a flood of applications, letters and telegrams from people who want to work for him.

The communications have occasioned considerable surprise at the embassy, where it was stated the ambassador owned less than an acre of land in Mexico, that being the plot on which his country home at Cuernavaca is located, which cost him $2,000. As for "purchasing waterfalls on behalf of the General Electric Company," it was said the nearest thing to water power he owned in Mexico was the swimming pool in the back yard of the Cuernavaca place.

ASKS CONSIDERATION OF COTTON SITUATION

Texas Senator Urges Farm Board To Take Early Action.

Washington, July 19.—(P)—Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, appealed to the federal farm board today to give early consideration to the cotton situation.

The Texas senator urged the board to set up a statistical bureau as the first step in pointing the way to a consideration of cotton conditions. Carl Williams, of Oklahoma, the cotton representative on the board, assured Senator Connally that as soon as the board had determined its policy the cotton situation would receive consideration. He received with interest the suggestion for the establishment of a statistical bureau which would keep the board in touch at all times with cotton crop conditions.

Reports have been received here of the adoption by the Texas and Georgia legislatures of resolutions asking consideration of the cotton situation, but the board has not yet been able to give consideration to specific commodities.

While cotton prices have been sliding downward, Senator Connally expressed the opinion that they had stiffened and would at least hold their own.

Chairman Legge announced that he and Carl Williams, representative of cotton, C. C. Teague, representative of fruits, and Secretary Christensen would attend the board meeting at Baton Rouge, La., on July 29, of the American Institute of Co-operation. It was decided to leave a quorum of the board here.

Discussing the cotton situation, Chairman Legge said that the board would accept the request of the Texas legislature to hear a committee.

Mr. Legge is not alarmed over the cotton situation, although he realizes the price is low, yet he believes this is about the same as it was this time a year ago.

17TH BANK CLOSES IN FORTNIGHT IN SOUTH FLORIDA

Tallahassee, Fla., July 19.—(P)—Reports of the closing of the State Bank of Pablo at Jacksonville Beach reached the state banking department today. Comptroller Ernest Angus said the bank was in a liquid condition but was closed as a precaution when a light run developed.

The Bank of Pablo was the seventh bank which has closed in Florida this week and the twenty-eighth within two weeks. Four others closed on May 15 and their president, John L. Fouts, of Bartow, is awaiting trial on a charge of illegally lending himself funds.

Meanwhile, reassuring information has come from Washington indicating that a lessening of the fruit fly has been under consideration of the newly organized farm board, and that President Hoover plans to recommend reimbursement for growers whose crops have been destroyed.

This, together with growing public confidence has combined to stop the run on Florida banks, the comptroller indicated in making public the closing of the Jacksonville Beach bank, which had combined capital and surplus of $16,000, deposits of $70,800 and assets of $90,300, according to its last report.

CALLE WILL LEAVE SATURDAY ON TOUR

Texas Warrant for Murder Threatens Mexican Presi- dent on Train Trip.

Mexico City, July 19.—(P)—Accounts published in Mexico City newspapers today that General Plutarco Elias Calles would leave here Saturday by train for New York, passing through Texas en route, caused surprise in some circles where the threat to John F. Vall's former estranged attorney at Laredo, Texas, to arrest him on a murder warrant was remembered.

The Mexico City accounts today said General Calles would leave aboard the Ile de France on July 26 to spend several months abroad, during which time he will rest and seek relief from an illness which has bothered him for some time. He will be accompanied by two aides.

Previously it had been understood he would go to Tampico and take a ship from there to New Orleans, proceeding to New York by train from that city.

Last August Vall, who is now a judge at Laredo, accused General Calles and the late General Alvaro Obregon of complicity in the assassination of two Mexican army officers in Laredo in 1922. Vall said that while General Obregon's assassination had removed the possibility of arresting him, "the prosecution against Calles and his fellow conspirators will remain pending with the fervid hope that some day they will be called upon to answer for their enormous crimes at the bar of justice in Webb county."

Vall's statements were made as the result of an exchange of correspondence with the state department at Washington growing out of the threat of the Mexican government to remove its consulate from Laredo because of prejudicial handling of cases in which they were interested.

TENNESSEE TAX LAW IS DECLARED VALID

Nashville, Tenn., July 19.—(P)—The Hall income tax act and the general appropriation bill were declared valid and constitutional by the Tennessee supreme court today.

The cases of Ed Grace, Freeman Gunion and George Washington Prince, Memphis, under death sentence for the murder of John E. Levy, were reversed and remanded.

Chancery court had held the Hall income tax law invalid because only taxed stocks and bonds not taxed ad valorem. The supreme court reversed the decision and held that much such intangible property was escaping taxation and that the income tax law would not tax the same properties twice. The law places the tax on incomes, but the exemption is directly on the intangible property.

The general appropriation bill, the backbone of the state, was attacked by Noah Cooper, a taxpayer, who contended it was unconstitutional because the governor signed it on Sunday.

Chancery court ruled against him, and the higher court upheld the decision. This litigation had tied up state funds and the comptroller had refused to honor warrants until the case was decided.

Governor Henry Horton has said his decision on an extraordinary session of the general assembly would be influenced greatly by the decisions. The state was victorious in both fights.

The Shelby county murder cases were remanded because the grand jury was not "legally selected." A special judge was on the bench when the jury was selected.

The court held the special judge had no authority to empanel a grand jury and that the indictments were void.

The court dismissed the petition of Walter Liggett, slayer of Turner Cunningham, for a writ of certiorari and supersedeas by which he sought release from jail. Liggett's bond of $25,000 was ordered vacated following bribery charges in connection with his second trial.

The case of J. W. Turner, Memphis, sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment for second degree murder, was affirmed.

UNION LEADERS TO VOTE ON STRIKE AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, July 19.—(P)—A general strike committee, comprising union labor leaders of New Orleans, probably will meet Tuesday to consider calling out affiliated workers on all lines in sympathy with the striking street car men. E. J. Foster, committee chairman, said today. Such a general walkout would involve approximately 40,000, it was estimated.

Although it had been expected the question of a general strike would be brought before a mass meeting last night, the subject was never touched upon, rain breaking up the gathering after several speakers had scored the public service for failing to arbitrate the differences.

CHINESE MINISTER EXPLAINS NAME OF CAPITAL CITY

Washington, July 19.—(P)—The new name of the former capital of China is spelled "Peiping," and means "northern peace."

Chinese Minister Wu has said that spelling of the city is correct by way of clearing up confusion resulting from press dispatches during the present Sino-soviet troubles, in which the city has been called by such names as Peking, Piping and Peiping. Peiping is a revival of the name given the city by the first emperor of the Ming dynasty during the 14th century. The change from Peking was made by the nationalist government after it established Nanking as the capital.

Cripples Leap and Run as Boa Invades Hospital in Ecuador

JUST ANOTHER SNAKE STORY, BUT IT'S TRUE

New York, July 19.—(United News.)—A wholesale miracle in a hospital in Guayaquil, Ecuador, wherein the lame walked and the paralyzed leapt into the air, was reported today by Allen A. Lomborg, vice president of the Grace Line, upon arrival of the Grace liner Santa Rita from Valparaiso and Guayaquil.

The cures were wrought, not by a local saint, but by a 10-foot boa constrictor which made its way into the Civil hospital through a window.

Shortly before midnight there was a tremendous clamor in the town, said Lomborg. "Police were called out. The militia was called out. The fire engines were called out. The populace converged upon the Civil hospital."

"Finally I learned what had happened. The boa constrictor had entered the hospital from nearby undergrowth and glided through corridors until invited by the open door of the cripples' ward. Some one screamed. The huge snake attacked a male nurse."

"Many of the cripples had been bed-fast for months but they fled on newly vitalized limbs to the windows. One man, paralyzed for more than two years, jumped six feet from his bed to a window. Doctors who examined him later believed him cured. He had what they called 'hysterical paralysis.'"

Lomborg said early arrivals among the police and militia killed the snake and found the nurse only slightly hurt.

Volcano Is Active.

Sapporo, Yezo, Japan, July 19.—(P)—The volcano Komagatake began a new eruption today, showering ashes over the nearby villages. The inhabitants prepared to withdraw.

FRENCH SEEKING DEBT COMPROMISE PLAN

Reservation to Foreign Bill Sought To Be Incorporated in Measure.

Paris, July 19.—(P)—Efforts to find a compromise by which reservations to the foreign debt ratification bill might be incorporated in a special resolution or subsidiary bill failed today when the finance committee of the chamber of deputies almost unanimously declared itself in favor of incorporating the reservations in the text of the bill itself. This is in direct opposition to the declared policy of Premier Poincare.

The committee rejected all the compromise texts proposed to it, stubbornly maintaining its opposition to unconditional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord.

It also decided that the chamber must continue its session tonight and tomorrow, instead of postponing the debate until Monday or Tuesday, unless Premier Poincare himself should request the suspension on account of ill health.

The premier, although he is feeling better, still suffers from a slight intestinal infection and his doctors have refused to permit him to visit the chamber before Monday.

GANGSTERS TAKE ANOTHER TO RIDE NEAR NEW YORK

New York, July 19.—(P)—The body of a man, apparently the victim of a "ride" found on a little used roadway between South Amboy and Old Bridge, N. J., was identified by police today as that of William Wolgast, 39, of New York.

Identification was established through comparison of fingerprints at police headquarters and police said the man was arrested in January, 1922, for violation of the Mullen-Gage law, the then state prohibition enforcement law.

Chicago Bombers Get Busy Again; Residence Wrecked

Chicago, July 19.—(P)—The home of Dominick Mardi, a laborer, was bombed early today while his wife and two daughters were asleep on the second floor. Mardi was at work. Windows were shattered, and the dwelling damaged, but the family escaped harm.

Mrs. Mardi said she knew of no trouble nor any threats against her husband that might be blamed for the attack.

from the take-off at Atlanta next Tuesday morning to the return to Candler field Friday afternoon, will be under his direct charge. The major is one of America's foremost fliers and as secretary of the N. A. A. contest committee has supervision of all contests, record trials, endurance flights and other events under N. A. A. sanction.

Captain McDaniel is one of the army's most experienced pilots. He is in charge of pilot training under Brig. Gen. F. P. Luhn and has around 500 students in training.

Captain McDaniel was a pilot on the Pan-American Good-Will flight to the army in 1927. On that tour he flew about 23,000 miles and was away four and a half months, visiting 22 countries in Central and South America. He has 2,500 hours in the air extending back to the World War, when he was stationed overseas.

The trip from Washington was made without incident except for some rain and cloudy, "fuzzy" weather. The "Falcon" came through from Langley field in five hours.

Following their arrival, the air tourists will be taken to the Albany hotels, where they will have a chance to rest up a bit for the dinner in their honor, to be given at Radium Springs casino at 7 o'clock. Members of the Chamber of Commerce and their ladies will attend this dinner and greet the visitors. The dinner will be followed by dancing and water sports in the Radium Springs swimming pool.

Sunday airmail service will be inaugurated August 4 between Atlanta, Jacksonville, Miami and Tampa, it was announced Friday by officials of Pitcairn Aviation, Inc., operators of the route. This was said to be the first of a series of improvements contemplated which is expected to culminate in night service over the route within a few months. The service now is operated six days a week and is the only one of the four lines running in and out of Atlanta not functioning on the Sabbath.

Doug Davis, local manager for T. A. T. Flying Service, is planning a serious effort for first honors in the Miami-to-Cleveland non-stop race which will be one of the features of the 1929 National Air Races and Aeronautical Exposition, to be held at Cleveland from August 24 to September 2. Having acquired a Hispano "E" of 180-horsepower, Doug shipped it Friday to Walter Wise, of Birmingham, who is widely known for his work as a mechanic on Hispano motors. Wise, who is connected with the national guard at Birmingham, will keep up the power plant to racing pitch and then ship it to Wichita, where it will be placed in a custom-built racing Travel Air. Doug will fly the ship to Candler field and then to Miami.

Several visitors checked in at Candler field Friday. A Stinson-Detroiter, four-place cabin monoplane, powered with a J-5 Wright Whirlwind, arrived late in the morning, gassed up and departed for Jacksonville. It was piloted by W. D. Marr, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and brought by Jack Isbell and Roy Thompson as passengers. During the afternoon a Consolidated PT-1 with a Hispano "E", long the standard Army corps standard training plane, arrived from Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., piloted by Lieutenant McArthur and carrying Lieutenant "Summer" as a passenger. It stopped overnight and will return to its home port this morning. Charlie Hayes, Memphis Travel Air dealer, returned to his home Friday after a two-day visit to Doug Davis.

DEADLOCK IS FEARED IN COTTON INDUSTRY

Manchester, July 19.—(AP)—Margaret Bondfield, British minister of labor, faces a new deadlock in the cotton industry dispute which she tackled when half a million workers refused to accept notice of 12 1/2 per cent reduction in wages.

Through Miss Bondfield's efforts 140 delegates representing workers and employers met at the ministry of labor in London today, but the conference collapsed almost immediately after the proceedings opened. The employers refused the demand of the workers' delegates that the order for wage reduction, effective July 29, be withdrawn as a condition of negotiations. Today's brief meeting was secret, and no labor ministry officials attended.

The woman cabinet member vigorously tackled the wage dispute in the cotton industry, with its immense potential dangers for unrest and disturbance in industrial England. It is not believed that today's failure will be accepted without new efforts to bring the disputants together.

In her present task Miss Bondfield has received cordial support and good wishes from all sides of British politics. So far Miss Bondfield has left the matter to the permanent officials of the labor ministry. As the result of the break down here today the ministry is expected to officially intervene tomorrow and summon representatives of both sides to another conference in London. It was presumed that Miss Bondfield, as minister of labor, would take a personal part in this conference.

KENNESAW MOUNT MEMORIAL PARK PLANS ARE VETOED

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—The Tarrar bill to authorize the appropriation of $75,000 for creation of a national military park on Kennesaw mountain battlefield in Georgia has been disapproved by Secretary of War Good.

Acting Chairman James of the house military committee was advised by Secretary Good that the measure did not conform with methods of the commemoration of battlefield around Atlanta under existing laws.

that his death would be only a matter of hours. His skull was badly crushed when he was beaten by some blunt instrument in the hands of an assailant who robbed him of his watch after slugging him.

Julius Miller, a negro employee of the plant at Decatur street and Piedmont avenue, where Overbeck works, was taken into custody in connection with the case Friday but Detectives W. W. Ford and W. D. McGee Friday night indicated that he was held only for questioning and that they still were seeking the man believed guilty.

MALE QUARTET WILL SING SUNDAY FOR POLICE CLASS

The Chickamauga Male quartet, of Chattanooga, Tenn., a well-known

group of songsters, will sing before the semi-monthly meeting of the Atlanta Police Singing Class, in the recorder's courtroom at police headquarters at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. It was announced Friday by Lieutenant E. C. Hudson, president of the class.

The singing class meetings, which are held the first and third Sundays of each month, usually are attended by many auditors as well as by scores of class members. Lieutenant

Hudson, in announcing the special attraction for this Sunday, extended a special invitation to all those who wish to hear the quartet. Patrolman J. W. Massey, secretary of the class, also will be heard in a group of solos.

THE UNKISSED BRIDE

By BERTA RUCK

INSTALLMENT LXXII.

THE TRAILS OF EROS.

Joy said nothing. Her thoughts, shimmering and twinkling like the dapple on the water, "Isn't he like some beautiful archangel? How can any one say a flyer is not the world's most romantic figure? And how can some women say, 'You don't want a man to be good looking?' Perhaps it's providential. A kind-hearted arrangement of nature's, because such lots of men are undersized and spotty and O'leag and knock-kneed and awful. Ah, but I've got one," she exulted with innocent shamelessness. "It's quite true, only two things worth living for in this world: love and fly!"

As if he guessed this thought, Rex went on, "I'd like to fly you straight back to England now; how would you like that?"

"I do want to fly again."

"I thought perhaps you might. Last night was only my first trial trip. Hardly counted. It was to fly you down to my mother's in Surrey. Should you mind that?"

"I'd like to see Mrs. Travers again."

"My mother, you know, has got this old white cottage home with a stone paved veranda and high-clipped box hedges and that sort of thing, at the edge of the beech woods. That's where I shall take you, for the real honeymoon. Just about time we had a holiday, don't you think? Might get old Locke over here to attend to the Simps. Just for a fortnight, dash it! They could do without us for a fortnight. Then I'd take you right away. Away from quickly and inferior film scenery," muttered the islander.

His eyes swept inland, unpleased, over rainbow strip of place between spreading expanse of palm trees that glimpse of shimmering mauve foothills over which that giant seemed to have split that lush and luscious sugar, represented by the white cubes of Riviera architecture. "Away from this crackling crowds. It's always quiet in my old home. Even on the hottest summer day there's a pleasant breeze in the grounds. Inside the house it smells of log fires and log fires, and there's a lot of jolly old oak and rose chintz and so on. Old sporting prints all the way up the stairs. My room's on the right. My mother keeps it just as it was. A long, low place; two big windows looking on to the tennis lawn, and my old bookshelves, and some of my school cups, and the bit of propeller off my first bus. The flyer told his girl in tones that held open a door and hid her enter a boy's—a man's secret domain, while at the same time he crossed his arms negligently over his broad chest and as seen from the shore might merely have been commenting on the hottest day of the season. "There is a carved oak four-poster that I bought when I was a young man. Look at me! My mother would get that room ready for us. After all, we have to be married, remember?"

She said nothing. She turned upon him her kitten glare, wide with such would-be rebuke that he laughed out. "Do you remember," he added huskily, "Old Locke's priceless stipulation. 'Why, man, you need not even kiss the bride?'"

"O, did Dr. Locke say that?"

"You'd forgotten?"

"Haven't you, sometimes?"

"You mean I haven't kept to it?"

Both of them were remembering the incident after the vigil on the balcony as Joy in an unsteady little voice retorted, "Well, have you?"

"No," he admitted. "I'll tell you something else if you like."

"What?"

"That night—when I was allowed a sort of neck on my clock—that was the only time. Other times as well I've kissed you. Plenty of times. Not actually, perhaps?" His eyes, which had been following the little map of blue veins that showed through the gleamy skin of her shoulder, rose again. "Not actually, of course. But when you didn't know," confessed this bounding black-and-white giant.

Suddenly his snake-skinned nymph retorted, "Did you?"

He turned what she called his Rex-look upon her, then suddenly uttered a "Curse!" between his teeth.

Joy, who had moved from him to the platform's edge, glanced over the gleamy shoulder. "Curse?"

"All these," explained the man with a jerk of his chin towards the audience he had so far ignored. "Just when I want to pick you up in my arms and kiss you properly you must needs be standing here in the public eye."

But she was no longer there. She was gone.

With a light swing of her arms, Joy Travers had launched herself off the diving board. Eyes of those watching from the beach had followed the swift swallow flight of nymph's form against sapphire sky, voices exclaimed, "Ah!"—exclaimed, "Reckless!"

With a curve lovelier than any described by looping pen of medieval master writer she swooped through the air, then struck! From the bars of the flowered above her feet as the girl disappeared, swimming under water.

Arrow swift, the man's dive followed hers. Splash! He disappeared, swimming under water.

Only from a hydroplane, circling low, could anything have been seen of how their shadows on the glittering bottom raved. Quickly he overtook her, swam alongside.

With a simultaneous movement as of darting fish, there, below water, unseen, the married lovers turned faces one to the other. There, below water, unseen, they exchanged their lightning kiss before, together, they rose to the surface again and broke through foam into the sunshine.

An airplane, flying over that slant of the Riviera and circling low to cast an angular winged evening shadow on the dross olive grove terraces to the side of the mountain road still rosiely in sunlight, might have watched a sight which was not to be guessed by the chief persons in this story.

Circling low, looking down, the aviator would have seen how up the steep and silvery hill slender boy shape clambered. Its progress seemed the wavering flight of a butterfly chased over the slope. Lightly it sprang from this granite block to that, pausing to catch a handful of olive twigs, to pull itself onwards and up as it driven.

Presently, in a longer pause, it looked to the right to an oblong recess in the bank under a droop of olives. Upon stones and tree the low sun fell so that the niche was filled with shadow, deep as that of the valley. Here, slowly, sideways, the boy let himself down to rest, as on an olive loaf that has fluttered to earth.

For a moment, Percival Arthur Fitzroy sat still, looking down over the steep pulpit he had climbed. He sniffed in the incense of rosemary, sage lavender, thyme, myrtle, countless aromatic herbs—like in Coriaria! Presently he spied, about 20 yards down, the glitter of a flung away petrol tin. He scrambled in the earth beside him for pebbles, and took shots at the tin, muttering after the throw, "Got him. O, rotten. Good."

He tired of that game, lifted his head, to stare at a flapping, hovering hawk. Then he turned quickly to follow with his eyes the precipitate flash downhill towards Grasse of a Citroen car which vanished in its puff of dust.

With a quick shrug he began whistling under his breath, as he felt in all his pockets his flannels for chocolate. No chocolate. Whistling, he dragged out of his pocket something forgotten, a crumple of flimsy miniature yellow handkerchief. At this he stared. Whistling, he spread out the little square upon his knee, staring at its initial.

Suddenly the whistle stopped. Suddenly this high and sunny world went out. Suddenly, as a child breaks with surprise, broke together; his fair head dropped to his chest, his chest to his drawn up knees, his hands, dangling to his sides. A quiver ran over that cheerful face, roiling behind which was wont to peer now the child that had been, now the youth that presently would be. Tears welled up, clotting his lashes and fell to over cheeks so downy that they did not keep the trace of tears. His hands flew up to his face. He muttered, "It's not a handkerchief. It's not anything about its being me that told him. Never think of anything but him now." Then a sob broke suddenly and loud; another, another. On the bright warm hillside Eros crouched and wept.

Weep, Eros! Sob as if your heart would break; it will not break. Cry yourself out of those healing tears that fall and splash as though they would never cease to flow. Sob for a sorrow that holds no bitterness of disillusion, a sorrow perhaps happier, more complete, more enriching than joy you will know as a man.

Sob for all too young love that must be treated as a weed. The world will have it so; ugly and unkind, the world will not remain of great beauty; beauty, damned in one channel, gushes through another. Starved of excesses, it grows wings, perhaps all the sturdier for its privation, even though seedleaf love passes.

But sob because it passes, this unforgettable seedleaf love, and because maybe none lovelier or purer is to follow.

Sob for dreams unfulfilled—also, for many dreams come true. Then stop. For here is comfort. Bounding up to you over the boulders of the hillside, here is consolation, brought to you by a friend who is all grace and glow and glory, who parts in triumph at having found at last the companion who had slipped off without him.

"Roy! Did he, then! Did he, my old Roy's-boy?"

Here, ah here, is sympathy, lavish, uncritical, unfeeling, passing the love of women. The light rumbled head goes down on the head of glossy brown satin. Arms clasp the bushy tuft. The echo of a sob dies into a long drawn sigh of relief.

"Did the old Roy come, then, when master was nearly going to make such a something as of himself?"

A handkerchief. No! Not that one. He pulled a handful of dry wild grasses, blew his nose and mopped his eyes. For another moment he sat there with the big dog's neck clasped in his arm before, brist! he pulled himself together to answer the greeting of some red-shaded workmen who swung past. Then, he jumped to his feet, with Roy at his heels, ready to scramble down again to the evening shadows, lighted town, preening people and those little Italian girl friends who waited for "Percival"—you see, this evening they'd got on, at one of the cinemas, that old called "Wings"; not new, but absolutely full of thrills about flying, how their shadows on the glittering plane—topping! So Percival Arthur and his comrades weren't going to miss that, you bet.

Only, before he went, he took that handkerchief, folded it again and again into a small solid square of primrose yellow. He poked it between two of the gray stones, set another stone on the top, and left the tiny cairn as a monument there, on the fragrant hillside, Eros had left his tears.

Then, with Roy bounding through the scrub at his knee, he swung off downhill, whistling as he went.

(The end.)

For a moment, Percival Arthur Fitzroy sat still, looking down over the steep pulpit he had climbed. He sniffed in the incense of rosemary, sage lavender, thyme, myrtle, countless aromatic herbs—like in Coriaria! Presently he spied, about 20 yards down, the glitter of a flung away petrol tin. He scrambled in the earth beside him for pebbles, and took shots at the tin, muttering after the throw, "Got him. O, rotten. Good."

He tired of that game, lifted his head, to stare at a flapping, hovering hawk. Then he turned quickly to follow with his eyes the precipitate flash downhill towards Grasse of a Citroen car which vanished in its puff of dust.

Then, he jumped to his feet, with Roy at his heels, ready to scramble down again to the evening shadows, lighted town, preening people and those little Italian girl friends who waited for "Percival"—you see, this evening they'd got on, at one of the cinemas, that old called "Wings"; not new, but absolutely full of thrills about flying, how their shadows on the glittering plane—topping! So Percival Arthur and his comrades weren't going to miss that, you bet.

Only, before he went, he took that handkerchief, folded it again and again into a small solid square of primrose yellow. He poked it between two of the gray stones, set another stone on the top, and left the tiny cairn as a monument there, on the fragrant hillside, Eros had left his tears.

Then, with Roy bounding through the scrub at his knee, he swung off downhill, whistling as he went.

(The end.)

For a moment, Percival Arthur Fitzroy sat still, looking down over the steep pulpit he had climbed. He sniffed in the incense of rosemary, sage lavender, thyme, myrtle, countless aromatic herbs—like in Coriaria! Presently he spied, about 20 yards down, the glitter of a flung away petrol tin. He scrambled in the earth beside him for pebbles, and took shots at the tin, muttering after the throw, "Got him. O, rotten. Good."

He tired of that game, lifted his head, to stare at a flapping, hovering hawk. Then he turned quickly to follow with his eyes the precipitate flash downhill towards Grasse of a Citroen car which vanished in its puff of dust.

With a quick shrug he began whistling under his breath, as he felt in all his pockets his flannels for chocolate. No chocolate. Whistling, he dragged out of his pocket something forgotten, a crumple of flimsy miniature yellow handkerchief. At this he stared. Whistling, he spread out the little square upon his knee, staring at its initial.

Suddenly the whistle stopped. Suddenly this high and sunny world went out. Suddenly, as a child breaks with surprise, broke together; his fair head dropped to his chest, his chest to his drawn up knees, his hands, dangling to his sides. A quiver ran over that cheerful face, roiling behind which was wont to peer now the child that had been, now the youth that presently would be. Tears welled up, clotting his lashes and fell to over cheeks so downy that they did not keep the trace of tears. His hands flew up to his face. He muttered, "It's not a handkerchief. It's not anything about its being me that told him. Never think of anything but him now." Then a sob broke suddenly and loud; another, another. On the bright warm hillside Eros crouched and wept.

Weep, Eros! Sob as if your heart would break; it will not break. Cry yourself out of those healing tears that fall and splash as though they would never cease to flow. Sob for a sorrow that holds no bitterness of disillusion, a sorrow perhaps happier, more complete, more enriching than joy you will know as a man.

Sob for all too young love that must be treated as a weed. The world will have it so; ugly and unkind, the world will not remain of great beauty; beauty, damned in one channel, gushes through another. Starved of excesses, it grows wings, perhaps all the sturdier for its privation, even though seedleaf love passes.

But sob because it passes, this unforgettable seedleaf love, and because maybe none lovelier or purer is to follow.

Sob for dreams unfulfilled—also, for many dreams come true. Then stop. For here is comfort. Bounding up to you over the boulders of the hillside, here is consolation, brought to you by a friend who is all grace and glow and glory, who parts in triumph at having found at last the companion who had slipped off without him.

"Roy! Did he, then! Did he, my old Roy's-boy?"

Here, ah here, is sympathy, lavish, uncritical, unfeeling, passing the love of women. The light rumbled head goes down on the head of glossy brown satin. Arms clasp the bushy tuft. The echo of a sob dies into a long drawn sigh of relief.

"Did the old Roy come, then, when master was nearly going to make such a something as of himself?"

A handkerchief. No! Not that one. He pulled a handful of dry wild grasses, blew his nose and mopped his eyes. For another moment he sat there with the big dog's neck clasped in his arm before, brist! he pulled himself together to answer the greeting of some red-shaded workmen who swung past. Then, he jumped to his feet, with Roy at his heels, ready to scramble down again to the evening shadows, lighted town, preening people and those little Italian girl friends who waited for "Percival"—you see, this evening they'd got on, at one of the cinemas, that old called "Wings"; not new, but absolutely full of thrills about flying, how their shadows on the glittering plane—topping! So Percival Arthur and his comrades weren't going to miss that, you bet.

Mrs. Patterson Is First Woman Moving Picture Theater Manager in Atlanta

The photograph presents a charming likeness of Mrs. Anna Aiken Patterson, whose realization of a dream to manage a moving picture house stamps her as the first woman to enter the Atlanta field, hitherto developed by the masculine gender.

BY BESSIE S. STAFFORD.

The golden dream to own a managerial interest in a neighborhood moving picture theater in which she plays the part of hostess, the opportunity to build programs pleasing to women and children, and the desire to have personal contact with the audience patronizing the productions, has become a reality with Mrs. Anna Aiken Patterson, Atlanta's first woman theatrical manager, who took charge of the Tenth Street playhouse just one month ago.

She sat in her private office yesterday afternoon in the tower of the building overlooking Peachtree street, wearing a smart, sleeveless sports costume of brown and tan printed crepe, her shapely arms covered with a fashionable coat of suntan. Her glorious brown eyes sparkled with animation as she voiced her enthusiasm for the future of her venture, for Mrs. Patterson is an extremely intelligent person, and has a great many plans perfected for audiences at her theater.

Although she is entertaining a field hitherto untied by a woman, she is quite fascinated with the work in which she is engaged.

Comparable to Gloria Gould, who startled Broadway several years ago by assuming management of a moving picture theater, and proceeded to conduct business along the lines she thought would be appealing to children and adults, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are given over entirely to juveniles and long before the theater opens at 2:30 o'clock the youngsters are clamoring for admittance. Serial, comic and out-of-door reels unfold before the eyes of the entranced spectators filling every one of the 500 seats, and somewhere in that darkened house sits the intensely interested manager.

Atlantians Registered At White Sulphur.

Among Atlantians registered at White Sulphur Springs hotel near Gainesville, Ga., are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene V. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. S. Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Clait, Mrs. W. D. Manley, Mrs. Hunter Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Clark, Mrs. R. F. McCormack, Miss L. Ann McCormack, Duncan McCormack, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McCormack, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. W. Troy Bivings, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fonville McWhorter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Crawford.

Visitors Given Matinee Party Today.

Misses Julia and Harriet Henderson will entertain at a matinee party today in honor of Miss Emily McGhee, of Columbus, who is the guest of Miss Marie Simpson, and Miss Katherine Ephraï, the guest of Miss Louise Bagdal.

The guests will include Misses Marie Simpson, Louise Bagdal, Zella Marie Behn, Frances Hughes, Ainslie Shute, Mary Margaret McGuire, Kathryn Ephraï and Emily McGhee.

Miss Ethel Nash Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. Owen E. Hutchesson and Miss Margaret Dickey entertained Miss Ethel Nash at a miscellaneous shower yesterday afternoon at the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. J. P. Nash, who assisted in entertaining.

Pink and white roses and other flowers formed the floral decoration, and several contests were enjoyed, followed by a novel presentation of the gifts.

The guests were Mesdames Leila Hutchesson, E. E. Ward, H. O. Nash, Leila Bradley, J. P. Nash, Misses Dora Hutchesson, Ethel Cantrell, Vera Pevey and Lillian Bagley.

Confectioners Are Honor Guests.

Bringing to a brilliant climax, the dinner-dance given Thursday evening at the Biltmore hotel for the visitors attending the meeting of the Southern Wholesale Confectioners' Association, was an interesting event. Dinner was served in the Georgian ballroom of the hotel at 7 o'clock, and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

The reception committee in charge, included Van Smith, chairman; H. S. Stevenson, Charles R. Fulton and F. R. Threlkeld. They were assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Howard H. Allen, Mrs. Brooks Morgan, Mrs. Thomas C. Hull, Mrs. H. S. Stevenson and Miss Mary Tenenbaum. Each guest was presented with a number of handsome souvenirs, which served as place cards.

Meets Requirements.

Mrs. Patterson meets the requirements and possesses the qualifications to act in the capacity of theatrical manager, because she understands production, distribution and exhibition, the three important branches of the moon picture business and is well versed in the buying and booking end. Two full days are allowed for a silent film, as Mrs. Patterson argues that some pictures do not admit of dialogue, evidently the hundreds flocking to the theater have this same opinion. The talkies also have a two-day inning, and with the days planned for juveniles, the six-day program is complete. Under the supervision of this remarkably pretty and exceedingly clever woman Tenth Street theater is showing its individuality and fulfilling its mission in catering to the taste of the family circle.

Harrison.

Yancy Ann and Lenora Gaugler, the small daughters of Major and Mrs. Roland Gaugler, entertained Thursday at an evening party at their quarters in the garrison. The affair was most enjoyable, the small hostesses and their guests performing gracefully the dances of a bygone age with bowing of small heads and tapping of slipped feet as they obeyed the commands of "circle to the left, circle to the right and salute your partner." The guests included a number of the sub-junior set of the post, Lenora and Yancy Ann were assisted in receiving by their grandmother, Mrs. Robert Blakeman, of Barbourville, Ky.

Miss Graham Weds R. W. Patterson.

Covington, Ga., July 19.—Of cordial interest to a wide circle of friends and relatives and a marriage characterized by beauty and dignity, was that of Miss Frances Medora Graham, of Covington, and Ralph Walker Patterson, formerly of McDonough, which was solemnized Monday evening, July 15, at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. V. Graham, on Lee street.

Rev. W. T. Irvine, pastor of the First Methodist church of Covington, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large group of relatives and friends.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. John L. Callaway sang "The Dawn," accompanied by Miss Frances Preston at the piano, who also rendered the other musical music. Little Mary Nell and Rhoda Bell Hill, twin cousins of the bride, wearing dainty pink crepe de Chine frocks, opened the folding doors on the beautiful wedding tableau just as the last notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march were heard.

Miss Randall Graham acted as her sister's maid of honor and wore a gown of pink georgette with pink and white pique and gladioli, tied with pink tulle. John Bob Weaver acted as the groom's best man. The bride's youthful beauty was enhanced by her going-away gown of navy blue georgette with trimmings of eggshell-colored lace and other accessories to match. Her becoming hat was an early fall model of navy blue felt. Her flowers were bride's roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception was held immediately after the ceremony. Those assisting were the following young girls, close friends of the bride: Misses Katherine Smith, Sara Clyde Hutchins, Lottie Crawford, Mary Brooks, Eleanor Piper, Katherine Lawson, Florence McDonald, Polly Hitchcock, Miss Dorothy Piper held charge of the bride's bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson left during the evening for a motor wedding trip and on their return to Covington will be at home with the bride's mother, Mrs. E. V. Graham, on Lee street.

BIG ROCKS WERE BOUNCING DOWN THE SIDE OF THE CLIFF AT US WE WERE LOOKING FOR THE PLACE WHERE THE PELHAMS HAD HIDDEN JACK HOWARD'S SIX BROTHERS.

WE SAW A FELLOW CRAWLING AROUND THE TOP OF THE CLIFF, PUSHING THE ROCKS LOOSE. THEN WE SAW THERE WAS A HOLE IN THE SIDE OF THE CLIFF, AND SOME BOYS CRAWLED OUT.

JACK HOWARD GAVE A WHOO! "MY BROTHERS," HE YELLED, "HURRAH! THERE THEY ARE!" BUT NONE OF US THERE. OH NO! WE WATCHED THE BOY WHO PULLED AWAY THE ROCKS!

HE SLIPPED, HE TRIED TO GET TO HIS FEET TO HOLD HIMSELF—A ROCK GAVE WAY—HE FELL! HE STARTED BOUNCING DOWN LIKE THOSE ROCKS HE HAD PULLED AWAY—

BUT HE LANDED ON A SHELF. IT LOOKED LIKE HE WOULD FALL ANY SECOND. JACK PULLED OUT A SPY GLASS AND LOOKED—"GREAT GHOST!" HE SAID. "IT'S THAT SISSY GUY!"

Act first and then investigate. For thus you'll never be too late.

—Bob White.

The sixteen young Bob Whites were well feathered out now and they had begun to fly. They needed to be able to fly. They had too many enemies to be wholly safe until they could use their little wings. Two or three times Peter had run across them squatting down in a circle. They were just as close together as they could get. Each one was facing out. This meant that all their tails came together in the middle. Why they did that was a great mystery to Peter. That circle was a regular mystery circle. Mrs. Bob wouldn't tell him anything about it. You see, she liked to keep it that way.

Anything very early one morning Peter solved the mystery for himself. He was hurrying home to the dear Old Briarpatch. In just a few minutes it would be daylight. Already the Black Shadows were rapidly disappearing. Peter wanted to be home by the time jolly, round, red Mr. Sun started his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. So he was running fast.

It would be daylight. Already the Black Shadows were rapidly disappearing. Peter wanted to be home by the time jolly, round, red Mr. Sun started his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. So he was running fast.

It was all so unexpected that Peter almost turned a back somersault.

With no warning whatever there was a roar right in his face. He was aware of swift moving little bodies going in all directions. It was all so unexpected that Peter almost turned a back somersault.

He had all but run right into the middle of the Bob White family asleep. They had wakened just in time, or he certainly would have stepped on some of them. Not knowing who it was, they had taken to the air and were whirling round as he had frightened them.

Peter sat down right where he was and waited. Presently he heard a soft whistle. He knew it was Bob White's voice. He heard it answered. That was Mrs. Bob. From time to time he heard those calls and he knew that Bob and Mrs. Bob were calling their family together again. Finally he located them and promptly went over.

"Was that you who frightened us so?" demanded Bob White.

"Was that you who frightened me so?" demanded Bob White.

Then they both chuckled, for really the joke was on both. "I've discovered something," said Peter.

"What have you discovered besides discovering us?" asked Bob White.

"I've discovered why you and your family always sleep in a circle," replied Peter. "It is because it you are suddenly frightened you can each spring into the air without interfering with anyone else. To face each other, for by the time he has caught that one, the others have disappeared."

"It's a great idea," replied Peter. "However did you think of it? I don't know how any one else who doesn't know this trick."

"It has saved our lives many times," replied Bob White. "We always sleep in the open, where there can be nothing to interfere with our wings. And because each of us is headed in a different direction we never can bump into each other. Then all we have to do is to call to each other and come together after the danger is passed."

And so the mystery circle is no longer mysterious. Peter had even more respect for the Bob Whites. (Copyright, 1929, for The Constitution.)

Salo, Richman Begin Last Lap

Los Angeles, Cal., July 19.—(P)—

With a possible record in sight, but small promise of financial remuneration for their 140-hour race, Johnny Salo, Passiac, N. J., policeman, and Sam Richman, New York, starts on the last lap of their grind this morning. After 120 hours slipped by the pair had covered 610 miles, 70 miles ahead of the other five teams.

Cooler weather permitted the runners to speed up during yesterday's haul, average 5.09 miles an hour against the required 5.03 pace needed to equal the 25-year-old mark set by two Frenchmen in New Orleans when they ran 723 miles in six days.

In second place were George Reymann-Neils Neilson, 540 miles; Harry Abramowitz, New York, and Roy McMurtrey, 480 miles, third; Joe Spangler, New York; George Jusick, 456 miles, fourth; Charles Hartt and L. Jensen, 433 miles, fifth; Herbert Hedeman, New York, Pat Harrison, 636 miles, sixth.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 36

Copyright, 1929, by Edgar Rice Burroughs. All rights reserved.

The girl drew a knife and cut the bonds from Tarzan's legs. She led him through a winding corridor to a great chamber where stood a blood-stained altar. The men followed in two. Now Tarzan realized he had fallen into the hands of sun-worshippers, destined to be a human sacrifice to their flaming city.

Human skulls grinned from countless niches in the towering walls. A procession of females advanced through an arched doorway. Gold chains were about their waists. Golden ornaments covered them. Each carried two golden cups. The chanting began anew, from a dark passageway came a young and very beautiful woman.

"The high priestess," thought Tarzan. Her bare arms and legs were almost concealed with massive, jeweled ornaments. In her right hand she carried a long, jeweled knife. All knelt before her. She addressed Tarzan, but he could not understand. For a moment she looked intent; then she gave a signal.

The priests rushed upon the ape-man and laid him across the altar. Tarzan knew that in a minute more, this lovely woman would be transformed by fanatical ecstasy into a wild-eyed blood-thirsty executioner. With dripping knife she would be the first to drink her victim's red, warm blood from the little golden cup that stood upon the altar.
